

Verbal Tennis

Let's play Verbal Tennis! Unsure of what that is? Well, imagine yourself on a tennis court – having a verbal volley. That's right – you “serve” a question to the other person who must answer it with a question. Yes – no statements allowed. Any statement is a foul. Any repeated question is a foul. Got it?

In the space below, you must write a 20 line verbal tennis “match.” Choose two characters (any two you'd like) and put them in action – have them question each other. The catch? They can only answer in questions.
